TO CONFER LATER WITH CHURCHILL

Enormously Impressed With Magnificent Spirit Found Great Britain

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 27.—“Democracy must survive and England must survive—that is the one thing in which we are interested,” Wendell L. Willkie declared today, less than 24 hours after his arrival in London by airplane.

Rising early, the former Republican presidential candidate motored to the British ministry of information and there replied to questions fired at him by 300 news correspondents.

Willkie faced his questioners in the ministry's main conference hall and patiently answered volleys of queries that touched on virtually every topic of current interest.

“I am enormously impressed,” he said, “that this conference can occur in an England under attack, and that you can come here for free discussion.”

Magnificent Spirit
“In the past few hours I have been able to mix with English men and women. I have found their spirit magnificent.”

“I like their nerve. I have not found anybody yet who is downhearted.”

Willkie said he hoped to cross the Irish Sea to Eire and see Prime Minister Eamon De Valera.

“I want to meet the heads of all the democracies of Europe who are present in London,” he declared.

PA NEW OBSERVES

This morning the Street Railway company “sweeper” was on the job quite early, cleaning off the snow from the tracks. As a result, the street cars were on good schedule, to the delight of the passengers.

Before going to school today some of the boys were able to make a few dashes cleaning off the snow from sidewalks for residents. So the snow brought them a little pocket money.

Pooling highway workmen, snow-storms this winter have been coming from the east, making the snow-fences they erected on the west side of the highways of little use. In past years, most storms were from the west. Sunday evening, the snow-plovers were busy trying to keep the drifts from covering roads.

Some motorists appear to believe that on Sundays when the parking meters do not operate, that all parking regulations are inoperative. Cars were noted on Sunday, parked in a lot of places clearly designated as no parking zones.

A lot more people than heretofore will have to do some figuring for income tax statements this year than heretofore. Income tax reports are required this year from every person.

(International News Service)

BUCHAREST, Jan. 27.—Gaining the upper hand over insurgent Iron Guards, Premier Antonescu imposed a virtual military dictatorship on Rumania today while latest reports indicated some 6,000 persons were killed in the nation-wide rebellion.

Antonescu issued a decree placing all police stations, railway terminals, airports and frontier points under direct control of the Rumanian army general staff.

The latest check of casualties showed that about 3,000 persons had been killed in Bucharest alone. Sporadic fighting and “incidents” were reported still occurring as military authorities proceeded with the task of disarming the insurgent iron guards, whose outbreak kept Rumania under a reign of terror for a week.

High School Baccalaureate Service On Sunday Night

Despite treacherous driving conditions, and the flu, stately baccalaureate exercises for the January graduates of Senior high school's class of 1941 last night drew a fair-sized audience to the Cathedral to hear Dr. A. J. Cousins, pastor of Croton Methodist church, preach on “The Art of Successful Living.”

Assisting Dr. Cousins was Dr. John J. McIlvaine, pastor of First Presbyterian church.

Dr. Green Presides
Superintendent of Schools C. C. Green presided over the service.

Dressed in commencement cap and gown, members of the senior class sat in the reserved center section of the main floor. They filed into the auditorium behind Principal Frank L. Orth to the impressive procession and marched out at the close to the recessional, according to baccalaureate custom.

High school officials said it was one of the smallest baccalaureate crowds in recent history, but they knew well the blizzard which blew before, during and after the program.

Senate Committee Opens Hearings On Measure—Secretary Hull First Called

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A new proposal to limit President Roosevelt's power under the “lend-lease” bill by giving congress a veto over transfer of existing arms was studied by a Democratic group today as the senate foreign affairs committee opened hearings on the bill.

Mr. Roosevelt is expected to canvass congressional sentiment and consider modification of the “all out” British aid measure at a conference with his congressional leaders.

Significance To Move
The suggested curb on the president's power assumed more than usual importance because it originated with southern and other Democratic members of congress who frequently have joined with Republicans to fight “blank check” powers.

While the senate foreign relations committee called Secretary of State Hull before it, the house foreign affairs committee went into secret session.

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 27.—A verdict of murder and suicide was appended today to the official records detailing the slaying of a 20-year-old adopted boy and the suicide of his foster father at Smith's Corners, 15 miles south of Oil City.

Coroner S. G. Foster said James William Reagle, 77, killed his adopted son, Paul, with a bullet from a .22 calibre rifle, then snuffed out his own life in the same manner. The coroner said Reagle had been depressed for some time over unemployment and his wife's illness.

Mrs. Reagle underwent an appendectomy last Nov. 17, and has been a patient in Franklin hospital ever since.

The verdict of murder and suicide was returned yesterday after the coroner's investigation.

Worst Snow Of Year Battled By Highway Crews

Five Inch Fall Of Snow Hinders Traffic On Highways In District

SNOW REMOVAL WORK STILL ON

State highway department crews this afternoon were still battling the snow which started falling Sunday afternoon, covering the district with a five or six-inch blanket, which on top of last Friday's fall of over four inches, made one of the heaviest falls recorded in some time.

The highway crews went onto the job last evening, when the snow continued falling steadily, and worked continuously throughout the night and on into today.

Some Roads Drifted
They reported that roads in the upper part of the county were drifted some by a wind which accompanied the snow last evening, and some of the secondary roads are virtually impassable today.

As far as could be learned this morning, all of the county schools were able to have their sessions as usual, and the school buses were able to get through on most of the roads.

Motorists who were out in the worst of the storm had a hard time getting along, as the snow would cover windshields, even though equipped with defrosters and wipers. This made driving extremely hazardous and caused a few accidents.

Secretary Hull First To Be Heard By Senators On “Lease-Lend” Bill

By WILLIAM S. NEAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The senate foreign relations committee went into secret session with Secretary of State Cordell Hull today to question him on this government's knowledge of British “war aims” and to determine the nature of the missions of Harry Hopkins and Wendell L. Willkie who are in England now.

Decision to exclude the public was reached after brief testimony by Hull in open hearing in which the secretary of state reiterated his stand that this nation must give Britain all possible material aid to ensure control of the seas by the Democracies.

To Seek Information
Committee opponents of the administration's foreign policy planned a rapid fire of questions in the secret session. They indicated that they would seek information on the possibility of a negotiated peace, just what commitment if any, the United States had made to Great Britain; the “inside view” of England's chances of victory and the status of Hopkins, the president's special emissary to London, and the G. ### City Has Battle With Heavy Snow

Some Difficulty Experienced By Autos On Hills In Early Morning

Traffic Commissioner Thomas Jones reported at 11:30 a. m. today all lanes in and out of the city were open.

He said traffic on State and North Jefferson street hills for a time early today was tied up.

On State street hill a DeCarbo truck, while being removed, was struck by a truck from Ohio. However, no persons were injured.

Traffic was stopped from descending North Jefferson street early this morning.

However, the streets department scraper was placed in operation on the hills and ashes helped cars to ascend and descend.

According to T. C. Moore, superintendent of the street car company, all street car lines were open this morning, the snow plow having been placed in service at midnight last night.

Petain May Reshuffle French Cabinet

Laval May Be Key Figure

Not Known Whether Laval Will Be Restored To Cabinet

HITLER'S REPLY TO PETAIN IS ENROUTE

(International News Service)
VICHY, France, Jan. 27.—Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain may reshuffle his cabinet in the near future, informed French circles predicted today.

Whether Pierre Laval, whom Petain ousted as vice premier and foreign minister, thereby causing a Franco-German crisis, will return to the government was not known.

If he does return, observers believed, it will mean that the Vichy regime has taken a long step toward "collaboration" with Germany toward a "new order" in Europe.

Await Hitler's Reply
Fernand de Brinon, representative of the Vichy government in German-held Paris, is expected to arrive in Vichy either today or tomorrow with Chancellor Hitler's reply to Petain's recent communication to the French regarding Franco-German collaboration.

Reorganization of the cabinet will probably follow de Brinon's arrival, it was believed.

Editor's note: A dispatch from Berlin said that Otto Abetz, German ambassador to France, who has been stationed in Paris, returned to Berlin to confer with Reich authorities on the Franco-German situation.

Meanwhile, Henri Mouchet, a former prefect, was appointed director-general of the French information office.

and iron guard leader, who was arrested and charged with leading the revolt against the Antonescu government. Likewise the fate of former interior minister Petrescu was still unknown. He was ousted from the cabinet last week for failure to do his duty.

It was rumored in Bucharest that Antonescu now is planning to hold a nationwide plebiscite to determine the future form of his government.

Returning To Normal
Railway passenger service, suspended since the driving began a week ago, was resumed on a restricted scale. But as the nation gradually returned to normal, troops continued their arrests of insurgents and ringleaders—most of whom apparently will face firing squads.

(A dispatch from Budapest said "thousands" of soldiers killed during the rebellion, were buried with military rites and that thousands more slain rebels were buried secretly, with even their families forbidden to attend the burials.

(This dispatch said "that among the insurgent ringleaders already arrested were the iron guardist police chief of Bucharest, Prince Ghika, and former cabinet ministers Popoticescu and Constantinescu.

Along with the nationwide man-hunt for insurgents, military and police officials searched for jewelry and other merchandise stolen during the disorders. Looters were being executed summarily.

sion to hear Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff; Admiral Harold Stark, chief of naval operations, and Maj. George H. Brett, acting chief of the army air corps.

White house emissaries were said by informed senate sources to voice willingness to accept many modifying amendments, but it appeared doubtful that Mr. Roosevelt would agree to a congressional veto.

The veto proposal is based upon the principle established in government reorganization laws, under which the president's orders became effective unless disapproved by congress in limited period.

The suggested veto, it was explained, was designed to affect only warships, planes and other materials now being delivered to the army and navy which congress might consider vital to retain.

Sound Out Senate

The White House sent both W. H. McReynolds and Ex-Sen. Minton administrative assistants, to sound out senate sentiment on the measure.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was authoritatively reported, is willing to accept an amendment requiring him to submit a report to congress every 90 days on disposition of arms.

The house foreign affairs committee, which ended hearings Saturday night, is expected to begin consideration of amendments behind closed doors tomorrow.

"We ought to report the bill and perhaps start debate on it this week," said Rep. Bloom (D) N. Y., chairman of the committee. "The measure unquestionably will win committee approval. It ought to pass the house next week after liberal debate."

Rep. Fish, N. Y., ranking Republican, disagreed with Bloom's optimistic report.

Sees Close Vote
"I think the vote will be very close, perhaps 13 to 12, on many important amendments in the committee," said Fish. "I am sure that some major amendments will be adopted and the bill then reported to the house. I expect a final vote on the bill in the house on Feb. 7. We will try to recommit the measure if it is amended in satisfactory fashion."

Bloom said he plans to ask army and navy chiefs to make public their views upon the possibility of invasion of the western hemisphere by foreign foes.

While senate administration leaders declared that "there won't be over 12 to 20 votes against the bill," they conceded the possibility of important modifications.

Driving hazards were added to considerably today by the condition of many cars. In addition to the deep snow that covered highways, many autos were piled high with snow in such a manner that vision out of most of the windows was obscured.

Plans are being made by the Central Presbyterian congregation for observance during the coming month, of the nineteenth anniversary of organization of the church on the public square.

And just a week from today will be Groundhog day. Looks like winter today.

Street department workmen were engaged this morning in hauling truckloads of snow off the main downtown streets. In some places snow was piled several feet high along the curbs.

Autoists who parked at some of the meters this morning left their car several feet away from the curb, due to huge piles of snow that had been shovelled from sidewalks into the gutters.

Under a city ordinance snow must be removed within 24 hours from sidewalks. Some citizens who have a fear of an accident and a possible damage suit did not wait until snow finished Sunday until they cleaned as much snow as possible from sidewalks.

Today would have been a good day to hunt foxes. Not much has been heard recently of fox hunts in this section. Last year quite a few were killed in Mt. Jackson vicinity.

Any person who desires to take an operator's test in Sampson street Tuesday between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., should have chains attached to their car if snow is on the streets. Otherwise they will not be given a test.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY HITS 10-YEAR HIGH

(International News Service)
STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Jan. 27.—Industrial activity in Pennsylvania hit a 10-year-high in December, the monthly business survey of the Pennsylvania State College showed today.

The index of industrial activity reached 94.9, a gain of five points over the preceding month and 10.5 points over December, 1930, the college said.

December business, the report added, was the highest for any month since February, 1930.

Amabile, Giovanni Scarpant, Serafino Peluso and Bernardino Pagliaro. Honorary pallbearers were Tony Quint, president of the Savio Society, who spoke at the cemetery, Pasquale Toscano, chairman of the committee for Umberto Primo lodge, and Stranislavo Pagliaro.

Rev. Fr. Joseph Abbate conducted the committal service at the grave in St. Vitus cemetery.

Buchanan Funeral Time
Funeral services for William H. Buchanan, Highland Heights, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Offutt funeral home, North Mercer street. Interment will be in Bethel cemetery.

Mr. Buchanan, who died Saturday morning in Sharpville, was preceded in death by his wife, the former Mary Davis, on May 17, 1936.

Survivors are one sister, Mrs. William Vanatta; one step-daughter, Mrs. Delilah Smith; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Friends may call at the funeral home at any time.

unmarried, who had gross earnings of $800 or over, and from married persons whose gross earnings were $2000 or more. The minimum in previous years was $1,000 and $2,500.

According to census figures there are 103 towns in Pennsylvania with 10,000 or more population. This state leads the nation in this respect.

Driving hazards were added to considerably today by the condition of many cars. In addition to the deep snow that covered highways, many autos were piled high with snow in such a manner that vision out of most of the windows was obscured.

Plans are being made by the Central Presbyterian congregation for observance during the coming month, of the nineteenth anniversary of organization of the church on the public square.

And just a week from today will be Groundhog day. Looks like winter today.

Street department workmen were engaged this morning in hauling truckloads of snow off the main downtown streets. In some places snow was piled several feet high along the curbs.

Autoists who parked at some of the meters this morning left their car several feet away from the curb, due to huge piles of snow that had been shovelled from sidewalks into the gutters.

Under a city ordinance snow must be removed within 24 hours from sidewalks. Some citizens who have a fear of an accident and a possible damage suit did not wait until snow finished Sunday until they cleaned as much snow as possible from sidewalks.

Today would have been a good day to hunt foxes. Not much has been heard recently of fox hunts in this section. Last year quite a few were killed in Mt. Jackson vicinity.

Any person who desires to take an operator's test in Sampson street Tuesday between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., should have chains attached to their car if snow is on the streets. Otherwise they will not be given a test.

FAITH

Most any and all big and successful business concerns are looking for men who are able to cut down on their expenses and stop any unnecessary waste of money in conducting their business.

But, we notice in the paper a few days ago where a manager of one of our State Organizations, fired an employee because he was trying to save the taxpayers hard earned money.

In these times when it is hard for what few people who are left who still own their properties, or are in business and having a hard time to raise money to pay these unnecessary expenses, and our officials are laying awake at night wondering what to tax next to meet these bills, we would think they would be glad to have a few men who would help them to economize.

Any good business concern would be very much pleased today, if one of their employees were helping to avoid unnecessary expenses. "But, never mind, Mr. Henry" there is still a few good sound business concerns who are looking for men just like you, and we feel that the country would be better off if we had a lot more of them.

MAKING BEAUTY "WORK"

To give a greater popular appeal to the Metropolitan Museum of Art and thereby increase its usefulness is the ambition of the new 37-year-old director, Francis Henry Taylor. To the visitor to New York the museum is on the "must" list of sights, just as are the Capitol, the White House and the Lincoln Memorial to the hordes that descend upon Washington.

There the similarity ends. The tyro in art is liable to find this world-renowned art collection depressing rather than stimulating because he is bewildered by the many displays.

Mr. Taylor would bring an end to this state of affairs, but realizes it will have to be done gradually. It is Mr. Taylor's idea to present to the public what it ought to know and treasure. He has submitted to the trustees a plan, which will take a long time in its working out, for the museum to concentrate on exhibiting to the general public only its superlative works of art. That would leave the remainder, including huge historical and documentary collections for students, artists and industrial designers, so allocated as to afford opportunity for study in the rooms where they are housed.

All this takes cognizance of the fact that art collections are not like the exhibits at a county fair, to be taken in on a quick run-around before the races start. Aesthetic values of works of art are not realized at a flash, rather they are absorbed by contemplation time and again. And if the public, equipped with adequate catalogues, is brought face to face with the best work of old and modern masters, the opportunity for art appreciation ought to be immeasurably heightened.

The new director finds it necessary to make his own illustrious institution conform to the trend toward "good showmanship" being practiced today in many American museums large and small.

PROBLEM OF WAR PRISONERS

Management of one feature of war—the prisoner of war feature—is a most miserable part of the whole martial adventure. The burden on the captors almost equals the distress of the captives.

The Germans are getting a vivid example of that in handling the French prisoners. All communications now have been suspended between the relatives of the prisoners and the prison camps. French families have been exceeding authorized limits on food packages. These packages have been coming in such numbers to the prisoners that the German guards are weeks behind in their examination of the bundles for knives and other forbidden articles.

The upkeep of prisoners of war costs a pretty penny. Last week Switzerland, at the request of Marshal Petain, gladly consented to release to France 30,000 French soldiers interned by the Swiss. When the Maginot line crumbled these French forces, constituting almost an army corps, fled across the border. Switzerland is glad to return them home.

COLLEGIATE DILEMMA

In warning against the effects of Federal subsidization of America's privately-endowed colleges and universities, Dr. Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton, directs attention to a condition that should be thoughtfully considered by all graduates of the so-called "ivy" institutions. Since he who pays the fiddler usually calls the tune, the private centers of higher education may well view with alarm the current disposition to pass the hat at Washington.

In order to offset this trend and preserve the intellectual independence of the traditional colleges, it will be necessary for alumni to rally to the support of their Alma Maters as never before. Shrinking endowments and increasingly heavy operating costs have made the going extremely difficult for many of the major institutions.

If the temptation to seek and accept Federal funds is to be averted, voluntary backing will have to be accentuated all along the line. It is a case of each college saving itself—or being saved by a type of governmental action that cannot fail to involve objectionable bureaucratic domination.

NOTES ON AN AMBASSADOR

Lord Halifax, who is a fox-hunting squire, once said that he would rather be master of hounds than a cabinet minister. It turned out that he could be both—joint master of the Middleton Hunt and Foreign Minister of Great Britain. Now he has arrived in the United States in a new role for him, that of ambassador.

His ambassadorial duties cannot impose upon him a more elaborate protocol, a greater code of formal behavior, than does his fox-hunting. That sport has been a favorite subject of English fiction. Surtees devoted volumes to it and Trollope dealt with its complexities in one of his lesser known works, just republished here, "The American Senator."

While its practice has been transported to the United States, in particular to Virginia, the fox as an object of canine, equine and human pursuit remains English. Here is a sport that requires leisure, ample financial means, great houses, bracing but not frosty weather and open country. Its elegance, its sense of form, its skill and its risk are qualities that exert a strong appeal. Lord Halifax is their ardent devotee. He is the first British Ambassador to the United States who has been a practicing fox hunter.

But he is more than that—much more. Apart from his pink hunting coats, he is a man of austere habit of life, a scholar and a theologian of the most erudite attainments. The tough, practical administrator who as Viceroy of India could use troops to put down Gandhi's civil disobedience campaign could also sit cross-legged on the floor to discuss with the Mahatma problems of profound theological import.

Once called Britain's "No. 2 appeaser," Lord Halifax comes with Prime Minister Churchill's blessing, with a certification that Munich is forgotten. Once Britain became a belligerent Mr. Churchill testifies that none could have been more wholehearted and more single of purpose in supporting the war than Lord Halifax.

As matters are stacking up, President Roosevelt is going to acquire more administrative assistants than a corporation had vice presidents in 1929.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph.D.

THE CHILD WHO SAYS 'I WON'T'

Stubbornness is a good trait when well directed. Without it we would not struggle continuously to overcome the many difficulties of life. It's when a child's stubbornness hampers us in our guidance of him that we are most concerned about it.

When parents are wise and skillful they have no serious problems with stubbornness. I think it possible to avoid such problems in practically any child; and I speak from my experience as a father.

Usually we see stubbornness at its worst between the ages 2 and 5. Some parents grow panicky when the little rebel announces his independence with "I won't."

The natural response from the parent then is, "You will." But this is bad procedure. A better way is to act as if the rebellious utterance was not heard. Nearly always when one waits and shows no emotion following "I won't," the youngster will accede.

Avoid Commands

But suppose he does not. Suppose he holds out and makes his declaration good. Very well. Let the matter pass. Be more adroit next time and avoid a command. Merely make a request instead. Then when he says, "I won't," you have no occasion to punish him. He did not disobey since you had not commanded. You merely asked him if he would do it. You asked a civil question. He made a civil reply. You offered him a choice. He made it. Then why not take him at his word? But if you command him and he refuses and you try to compel him by force to obey he might not regard of how much you punish; in which event he has been trained in stubbornness. You see, pain inhibits, prevents. To use it to make the little child do something might render him less ready to do it.

Yet this hardly holds in matters of routine, since satisfying habit elements are in the picture. Even in routine situations we don't get best results, as a rule, by means of punishment.

When To Punish

But when you tell the tot not to repeat a specific act, punish him at once if he fails to obey, and don't repeat the command. Draw the line clearly. Make painful only what the child must never do. Make pleasant what you want him to do. Practically never make a positive command, make positive suggestions instead. Make a few negative commands and stick to them. Then you will not have problems of stubbornness. These principles, most effective with the tot, work well at any age.

The World and the Mud Puddles

NOT SO MANY

The stranger in town may be outnumbered five thousand to one by the other inhabitants, but for a time he'll outdistance all of them in winning attention.

So it has been with the refugees who have recently sought sanctuary on America's shores. The attention they have received has been out of all proportion to their numbers. The suspicion that the country is being overrun with a great flood of immigrants is groundless. The actual facts of the matter are interesting and worth looking into.

During the last eight years, 1,230,192 immigrants could have entered the United States under the quotas. Actually, only 395,716 did. It is noteworthy that during these same eight years, almost as many foreign-born persons left the United States permanently as entered this country.

Present laws limit the number of immigrants to 153,774 persons a year. Of this total, 83,574 are allotted to Great Britain and Ireland. However, immigration figures show, the quotas since 1932 have not even been one-third filled. A recent survey by the Immigration and Naturalization Service for 1939 yields the further enlightening fact that only one out of a typical one hundred immigrants is an unskilled worker, likely to compete on the nation's labor market. Many of them, of course, bring specialized skills which are not duplicated here.

It is evident that the amount of immigration to America has been, and remains, extremely small while at the same time the inflow and outflow of immigrants and emigrants have just about balanced.

If America desires to continue her role, which has been traditional for more than three centuries, of offering freedom and hope to those of other lands, plainly she can do so without jeopardizing her own security.

I've heard it said and hear it still

But solitary good or ill

A teacher was asking the class: "Can any little boy tell me about George Washington—was he a great general or an admiral?"

One of the boys had been taken on frequent fishing trips by his father. He spoke up:

"I don't know about his being a great general, teacher, but I'm sure he was no admiral."

"What makes you so sure, Johnny?"

NONSENSE STORY

An anxious man visited his physician.

"You've got to do something for me, doctor," he said, nervously plucking at his coat and collar.

"What is it?" inquired the physician.

"These feathers—all over me," went on the patient, plucking at imaginary feathers, and picking them off him. "I can't get rid of them."

"Well, you don't have to throw them all over me," answered the doctor crossly.

The judge, between his spasms, managed to ask the reason for such garb.

Good Taste

By E. C. Patient, Editor

"I am a brice who has been entertained profusely by parties, showers, etc., prior to my wedding. Now that I am established in my new apartment I know that I am expected to return this hospitality by inviting all of my friends to a large party at my new home. I have only a dinner and therefore cannot entertain at dinner. What do you suggest?"

Answer: Why not give a tea, a cocktail party or a buffet supper—at any of which you will not have to seat your guests at the dining room table. Your guests may be seated (or stand) in the living room and you may find if you have one or two go around at frequent intervals with refreshments.

To such a party you may invite a large group—the more the merrier—and repay all of your friends at once. Many modern brides with limited means and no servants find the afternoon tea, cocktail party or buffet supper the ideal way of bridging such a difficult situation.

Space prohibits my going into detail on the procedure of each of these parties. If you would like suggestions on carrying them out, send your request with a self-addressed envelope bearing a 3-cent stamp.

Question: A says that upon moving into a new home, the occupants should invite all of their friends to a housewarming. B says that a housewarming is something your friends give you, just like a shower. He says that giving a housewarming is practically inviting your friends to come and bring you a gift. Who is right?—A. J.

Answer: Customarily, the host and hostess give the housewarming after they are completely established in their new home. However, numerous people are of the same opinion as 'B' and upon hearing that the new occupants are ready for visitors arrange a housewarming for them. But in the latter situation, you must be very, very sure that the hostess is ready and willing to entertain. Personally, I should prefer to await an invitation from the hostess.

Question: Is it necessary to write a letter of acknowledgment to someone who has sent a sympathy card?—Christine.

Answer: Technically speaking, cards do not require acknowledgment; but you might write a short note thanking the sender for her kind thought of you.

ANATOMICAL DIFFERENCE

A police officer relates a case of words between a man and woman whose cars brushed in traffic. A conversation something like this was heard:

"I put my arm out," said the woman.

"No, you didn't; I didn't see your arm."

"Well, I did put it out, just the same; I reckon if it had been my leg you would have seen it."

A Hollywood actor was married twice to the same gal in four months. There was nothing wrong, except the gal wanted to get married again by her home town preacher when she got back home.

MODERN SHIFT

"My boy, you'll have to shift for yourself now," said the father to his boy.

"What the heck, dad," said the boy. "Do you mean you aren't going to get that new car with the automatic gear shift?"

What's What At A Glance

Congressional Leaders Drafted Bill
Spend-Lend Measure Not By Roosevelt
Barkley And McCormack Were Authors

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — One thing that makes the congressional fight over pending defense and aid-the-democracies legislation a personally extremely ugly one is the fact that Congress' own draftsmen concocted the measure.

Earlier in his executive career President Roosevelt was in the habit of framing up, right in the White House, the bills he wanted the lawmakers to pass, or, if he didn't do it himself, he had it done for him by his unofficial New Deal satellites.

Then the drafts were handed over in finished form to the administration's leaders on Capitol Hill, with orders to get 'em favorably acted on.

The Supreme court reorganization plan, for instance, was prepared thus. The leadership to which it was delivered hadn't the slightest advance inkling that it was coming. That particular scheme was turned down by the legislators, to be sure, but the executive mansion got by with plenty of its other requisitions, similarly presented.

It was a method which senators and representatives didn't overly like, generally speaking, but the leaders who sponsored the pre-drafted bills weren't blamed for doing so; it was recognized that they simply were acting as somebody else (F. D. R.) told 'em to.

Barkley and McCormack

The current proposal, however, enormously increasing the presidential power, was cooked up on the "Hill" itself, under the direct supervision of Senator Alben W. Barkley and Representative John W. McCormack, majority leaders of their respective chambers, probably with some advice from sympathetic fellow members.

Maybe Barkley and McCormack knew exactly what F. D. R. wanted, but nominally he had nothing to do with the job. It will be known as the Barkley-McCormack bill.

Consequently that particular pair is open to individual attack from members who consider that the idea is to have Congress unjustifiably surrender a lot of its constitutional legislative authority to the chief executive.

Congressmen don't so much resent presidential demands for more power than they think the executive branch of government is entitled to, because they're accustomed to the White House's desire for more and more of it. In fact, they agree that it's natural, though an inclination that they don't believe in acquiescing in.

But to have two members of their own outfit propose an abdication of their governmental wing's right is described by a good many of the legislators as verging closely upon congressional treason, in the perennial clash of interests between administration and legislation.

The panning Barkley and McCormack are getting from these critics is an exceedingly vigorous one.

They probably don't mind it from Republicans; from G. O. P. spokesmen they doubtless expected it. Anti-New Deal Democrats, though, also are pretty freely participating.

How It May Work

It's conceded that President Roosevelt was very crafty, indeed, in leaving it to the Hill to do, ostensibly, all the preparatory work on the defensive and aid-the-democracies plan. Of course, he saw the bill after it had been drafted, and said it suited him, but that was a decidedly different thing from having dictated it to his own stenographer.

He's in a position now to imply, "Congress drafted the scheme and it's all right. I'm merely accepting the burden that the legislative branch is loading onto me."

In fact, he did say so, in effect, when he remarked that he didn't especially want the one-man powers that the bill provides for—but that somebody has to have 'em, in the present emergency.

This wishes the onus off onto Barkley, McCormack and such other legislators as vote for the plan and a majority is fairly certain to do so, with maybe a few modifications.

McCormack, though, to have so many of their legislative associates pointing to them as authors of a scheme to put such a crimp into Congress' constitutional status and create a virtual dictatorship.

BUT that isn't the case at all with Senator Byrnes. Senator Byrnes has (Continued On Page Five)

City Lodge Hears Leader Of Moose

Past Supreme Governor Says Draft Touches 17,000 Young Brothers

HAIL MEMBERSHIP DRIVE TRIUMPH

Seventeen thousand younger members of the Loyal Order of Moose today stand eligible for America's growing draft Army, Past Supreme Governor A. H. Lader, of the Moose order told 400 members of New Castle Lodge 51 over the week end.

Lader, a Philadelphia, prominent in Pennsylvania politics, was here to honor the local lodge for its record-breaking showing in its recent "Patriotic Membership Campaign"—150 new members were added to its rolls in the drive.

The past supreme chief of the Moose fraternity, speaking on "The Backing of National Defense in America," related at length what the Moose organization is doing to help make America strong, and said:

"Something like 17,000 of our young brothers can be drafted—I have two sons of my own who are eligible and, brothers, I wish I could offer them five instead of two."

New Castle Lodge Governor James Gibson received, for his lodge, beautiful new altar drapes from Lader as the supreme lodge's recognition of its membership accomplishment.

The membership campaign, which continues until February 1, was led by Anthony Tino. The Moose's Willing Workers assisted him.

The past supreme governor told his audience of President Roosevelt's third inaugural, which he witnessed. He told of a visit with the president's son, James, a member of the Moose. In Washington he was the guest of U. S. Senator James J. Davis, founder of the organization.

Lader said here that dues of all drafted Moose members will be paid by the organization while they are in training.

Initiation for the 150 new members here will come within a short time, Governor Gibson said. The local degree team will be in charge. A dance followed Lader's talk.

Cairo stated Biscia, gateway to Agordat, fell to British forces yesterday after a brief battle. One hundred Italians were taken prisoner. Another British column was reported to be sweeping across Eritrea in the south, executing a flanking movement beyond Barentu and into the Eritrean foothills. This column was threatening the Italian army defending the Agordat-Asmara-Massawa railway line.

An official communique said British "pressure" in the Abyssinian Metemma sector was continuing while in Italian Somaliland British forces were reported to be "extending the area of our penetration."

The latest communique indicated that the battle for the Italian desert stronghold of Derna is now in progress.

"Our forward troops, contacting the enemy about Derna, are being reinforced."

Reports from R. A. F. reconnaissance pilots revealed that the main body of Italian troops was falling back on Bengazi.

WORST SNOW OF YEAR BATTLED BY HIGHWAY CREWS

but only one serious crash had been reported in the district at a late hour this morning.

Storm Resumes

The snow eased off at midnight, and did not start in again until around 3 o'clock this morning, when a light sleet was noticed, which turned into snow later.

The heavy part of the snow did not start in until around 6 o'clock this morning, when it fell at a rate of better than an inch an hour for several hours, on top of a two-inch fall late Sunday.

Incautious motorists caused traffic tieups on several of the hill streets, when they started down over the hills at too high a rate of speed, and then when it became necessary to put on their brakes, skidded and crashed.

North Jefferson street hill was tied up to downtown traffic for a while between 8:30 and 9:30 o'clock this morning, with several cars and trucks piled up in the ditch, and other machines stranded behind them. Similar conditions were reported in other sections.

Superintendent E. O. Reed stated this morning that every available snowplow and truck was on the job, and that the men would continue until the main and secondary roads on the system were cleared for traffic. The worst trouble experienced by them during the night was on route 108 through East Brook and Volant to the Perry highway at Leesburg. Winds drifted this road, badly, highway department employees stated.

Battery F Men Have Gun Drill

Huge Gun Is Used In Drills At Armory During Morning Tasks

About thirty men of Battery F assumed the job, this morning, normally done by tractor, of wheeling the 155 millimeter (six inch) field gun weighing over fifteen tons, into location for gun drill, at Cunningham Armory.

One gun section, of fourteen men, took charge of the gun, unlimbered it, and put it "into battery," which consists of attaching the "spades" to the ends of the "trails," digging the recoil pit, and adjusting the recoil mechanism.

Now, all was ready for gun drill, under command of Captain George F. Mitchell. The signal and instrument section had set up the field telephone and instruments, to cooperate in the gun drill, which stimulated actual conduct of gun firing.

The instrument section figures out the firing range to the target, and angle of shift, which is given to the Captain, who checks the information. The latter in turn sends down the information to the executive officer, First Lieutenant Raymond Atkinson, who is in charge of the gun sections. The gun was set according to the word sent down, again checked back to the captain, who then gave the order to fire.

After firing about ten rounds, the gun was "cleaned and cooled," before proceeding with further firing.

The men went through their drill, with much "pep," and good spirit, every man learning his position well.

gram wouldn't add to the attendance. Nevertheless, Dr. Cousins' message, filled with challenges to the class members before him, was heard by an audience that overflowed from downstairs into the front rows of the first balcony.

Before the main program Mrs. Jay L. Reed, organist of Highland United Presbyterian church, presented a brief organ recital. One of her numbers was "Fairest Lord Jesus," the work of New Castle's Garth Edmundson.

Choir Makes Impression

Once again the famed A Capella choir of Senior high school won over a New Castle audience, for last night it sang to perfection. Directing it was Robert A. Duff, vocal music director at the high school.

Miss Julia Johns, a member of the graduating class, was the choir's vocalist for the evening. Accompanied by Mrs. Reed on the mighty organ, Miss Johns sang "How Long Will They Regret Me."

Dr. McVaine gave the opening invocation, read the Scripture, offered prayer and pronounced the invocation.

In his stirring prayer he raised thanks to Almighty God "for a land where the love of liberty abounds and where a passion for education guards this liberty we love."

The two choir numbers were "Call to Worship" and "Judge Me, O God." The congregation joined in singing "America" and "America, the Beautiful."

Senior high school students were the evening's ushers.

The class gets diplomas Friday evening, January 31. Dr. C. Herbert Spencer, president of Pennsylvania College for Women at Pittsburgh, will be the speaker.

Dr. Cousins' Message

In his stirring sermon on "The Art of Successful Living," (Text from John 1: 12) Dr. Cousins said in part:

"I wish to speak to you this evening on self-knowledge, self-mastery and self-giving as the art and conditions of successful living."

"Long ago, Socrates, the Father of Philosophy, wrote over the old Greek temple 'Know Thyself,' for he realized that achievement in any field and especially in the art of successful living depended upon an accurate knowledge of one's self."

"How strange, but how true, multitudes of men and women have been born, lived their life's span and have died and yet have never fully known or realized their true selves. They come and pass on the human scene, the possessors of unrealized and undeveloped powers which never quite find expression."

"They died," as Holmes pathetically declared, 'with all their music in them.' I know of no age when this injunction of the Father of Philosophy is more pertinent than this age."

"In the field of political economy there is a nationalism being fostered, not merely in spots, but all over the world that tends to rob men of their personal identity. And in the social realm, a philosophy that would lift from their shoulders all personal responsibility. And in the field of scientific discovery there is a tendency to belittle man and show his smallness."

In the light of scientific discovery today many are asking the question of the Psalmist 8:34, 'When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained; what is man that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?'

In the face of all this we have no adequate conception of what powers and abilities we do possess and what sort of an individual we may become. At heart most of us are faint and underestimating of ourselves. 'We do not really believe in our ability and for that reason, we remain weak, ineffectual, even impotent, when we should be strong, dominant, victorious, in life. Most of us ought to pray that prayer of the old cobbler in Edinburgh, Scotland. With a mature wisdom so frequently found in men of the simple, honorable trades, he was in the habit of beginning each day with the prayer, 'O Lord, give me a high opinion of myself.'

"Of course, the sense of self-esteem or sense of man's greatness may like every other emotional truth work itself out in forms beneficial to society or it may wrought degradation and hardship. It may create dangerous creatures like Hitler, or Stalin, or Mussolini, but on the other hand it may also flower out in a Washington, a Lincoln, a Paul or a Kagawa. It may spur men on in their lust of power and special privilege or it may if God touches them to release their greatness, make them men to match the God's mountains, unselfish benefactors of humanity."

"God give us men," the poet once prayed, for said he, "the times demand strong minds, great hearts and ready hands." Ah! how true that is of the times that you and I are living in today! But only God can give to us those strong and capable souls who bless the world."

"An individualism without the purifying grace of the Lord Jesus Christ is fraught with dark and sinister possibilities, but when touched by God and inspired by the common life of the world, the kind of self-esteem or individualism I am advocating is the kind St. John spoke of in the text—To as many as received him to them gave he power to become the sons of God." Let that transforming touch take place in your life, then square your shoulders and bravely meet life with Christ you are unconquerable."

"The second step in successful living is self-mastery. It is said that Marcus Aurelius gave the injunction 'Control Thyself'."

"The greatest battle of our lives and the greatest victories won are won on this field of self-mastery. If we do not win there we seldom win anywhere. On this field of self-mastery, Jesus was a consummate master. In the wilderness he fought it out and won a victory which forever sustained him. He arose there master of things and circumstances and every force that would hinder him in his life's work."

"That is the secret of all great lives. They have always shown this superiority over the flesh, the world and the devil.

"Plato was unmercifully satirized by Zeno a fellow philosopher. Plato had defined man 'as a two-legged featherless animal.' So Zeno picked all the feathers out of a rooster and brought it into the company of the philosophers as they met in conference one day and putting his featherless rooster down in their midst he cried, 'Behold Plato's Man.' Of course Plato got the laugh. But Plato did not get angry. He felt the rub and changed his definition. He afterward said, 'Man is a two-legged, featherless animal having broad flat nails.'"

"When Alexander was on his march of world-conquest, he came to Corinth. There lived in Corinth at that time an old philosopher, Diogenes, by name. Other philosophers and great men went out to meet and greet Alexander, but not Diogenes. He remained in his suburban home. There Alexander went to visit him. As Alexander and his attendants drew near, the philosopher raised himself up, somewhat and Alexander asked if he could do anything to help him. 'Yes,' replied the old thinker, 'I would have you stand from between me and the sun.' Alexander could have punished Diogenes for this rude insult, but he was too big for that. When his attendants criticized the thinker, Alexander simply said, 'If I were not Alexander, I would rather be Diogenes.'"

"Self-mastery not only helps us to rise above scorn and insult, but it also helps us to conquer circumstances."

"The third condition of successful living is self-giving. We could sum up the whole underlying philosophy of Christ's message to his disciples in two words. Give—Thyself. Give thyself in holy service. When his disciples were quibbling about place and honor in the kingdom he said, 'Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant. Even as the son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.'"

"This self-giving is central in the character of God. God so loved that he gave his best. He gave his all. He gave himself. And just as it is impossible to think of God except as a Great Giver, so it is impossible to think of human character in any ideal way, apart from this quality of self-giving in holy service."

"The one who does not give of his substance is called a miser; the one who does not give of his service in society and assume his share of the common responsibility, is branded as a hermit and many times as a criminal."

WILLKIE BEGINS INVESTIGATION OF WAR CONDITIONS

He said, however, that he has no plans to go to continental countries, such as France or the Scandinavian nations.

To Meet Churchill

Willkie arose early and went soon after breakfast to the information ministry to hold his press conference. Later in the day he will confer with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and other high-ranking cabinet ministers, according to present plans.

During the day, Willkie said, he will meet Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Churchill and Labor Minister Ernest Bevin and will dine tonight with Lord and Lady Stamp. He explained that Lord Stamp's daughter married a close friend and schoolmate of Mrs. Willkie.

It was assumed that Willkie plans to confer with King Haakon of Norway, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, King George VI of England, and officials of the Czechoslovakian, Polish and Free French governments in London by Private Citizen.

Asked whether he planned to report President Roosevelt when he returns, Willkie said:

"I am here strictly as a private citizen and have nothing to do with the government."

"In fact, the people of the United States decided last November I should have nothing to do with the government."

Willkie said he found the nighttime blackout "exactly like walking through a cemetery."

He had made plans to meet Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal representative in Britain, but that he hoped to visit Manchester and other "blitzed" English cities and to talk and listen to ordinary British men and women.

"I want to see everything they will let me see," Willkie declared.

"I want to get to know what the people think about the war and what they think conditions will be following your victory, in order that I may transpose them in my own way to the people of the United States when I return."

"I want to find out all about English methods of production and see how they can be co-ordinated with American production."

"I want to find out where your shortages are and where we can make them up."

Before leaving the information ministry, Willkie talked with Minister of Information Alfred Duff Cooper.

Before taking lunch with Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Willkie made a speedy automobile tour of the most severely damaged sections of the city of London—the capital's financial district.

There he was shown the devastated Guildhall, including the ruined banquet hall where he inspected relics salvaged from the ruins. He also visited the damaged Pater Noster row and the Amen corner beside St. Paul's cathedral and talked with air raid precaution officials and royal engineers engaged in demolition work.

After this tour Willkie drove to his rendezvous with Churchill.

WILL SHOOT EAU CLAIRE

The New Castle rifle club will go to Eau Claire tonight for an interstate shoot, it was announced by Secretary Ray Hammond. The club members will meet at 7 o'clock at the corner of Grant and Jefferson streets to make the trip.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Infections of the hands are a serious handicap.

They cause from 5 to 9 per cent of all total disabilities.

Slight injuries to hands are not taken seriously enough.

Disabling infections often start in some trivial injury.

Infection causes 20 to 50 per cent of all total hand disabilities.

It is compulsory in some plants for injured men to see the physician. And this regardless of how slight the accident.

In such plants injuries are properly cared for when first received.

There are, as a result, fewer major infections.

A "hangnail," improperly treated, may start a painful infection.

Hand infections often require prolonged treatment.

Minor infections may become major if not treated at the onset.

POOR FLOCK MANAGEMENT CAUSE OF INFERIOR WOOL

Every year out of approximately 600,000 pounds of wool about 25,000 pounds is discounted from three to five cents a pound in Pennsylvania and is classed as unmerchantable.

A large percentage of this loss can be avoided by proper handling and feeding of the ewe flock during the winter.

The following precautions are suggested:

1. Do not permit sheep to run around a straw stack in the barnyard, because chaff will drop down into the fleeces.

2. Avoid running sheep where seeds and chaff can rattle down from above.

3. If hay must be carried in through the pen at feeding time, always turn the ewes out and feed while the ewes are in the yard. Never carry hay over the backs of sheep.

4. Backs should be constructed so that chaff and seeds do not get into fleeces while the sheep are feeding.

ORDER VEGETABLE SEED EARLY TO AVOID RUSH

A shortage in some vegetable seeds exists because of the war in Europe and in others because of crop shortfalls in 1940.

The best strains of newer selections of vegetables and choice strains of regular varieties are more likely to be obtained if they are ordered early.

The following list of varieties are suggested for market gardeners, and further selections may be made from Leaflet 60, "Vegetable Varieties for Pennsylvania," which may be obtained free of charge, from the Agricultural Extension Office, No. 206 Post Office Bldg., New Castle.

Tendergreen bush snap beans are smooth, straight, and brittle. Plenty of earlier and is reputed to be better than Bountiful. Giant Podded pole limas have green seed and large pods that are easy to shell. Baby Potato limas are smaller than Fordhook and a few days earlier.

Wheeler And Nye To Introduce Measure Calling For Steps To Get Information

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Sens. Wheeler (D.) Mont., and Nye (R.) N. D., leading non-interventionists today plan to introduce a resolution calling upon President Roosevelt and the state department to determine the war aims and peace conditions and secret treaties of all warring nations.

Declaring that the threat of U. S. involvement in "a foreign war" is imminent, the senators said Americans are entitled to this information from England, Germany, Greece, China, Japan and any other warring powers "before this nation plunges from the brink into the holocaust of war."

"Most historians and students agree that the treaty of Versailles provoked the present war," their joint statement said. "Before the United States goes any further along the road to war we should have assurances from our potential allies that American boys will not be ploughed under European soil every 25 years."

"The lesson of the last World War should not be forgotten. We learned at tremendous cost the utter and complete futility of that war. We made our sacrifices in blood, in tears and in dollars to make the world safe for democracy and to end all wars less than 25 years ago."

The drafted resolution cited secret deals between France and England before and during the last World War under which they agreed on how they would split the war spoils, and called for proclamation of "all secret treaties for disposition of territorial spoils."

The strongest creature in the world, for its weight, according to one authority, is the beetle. It can carry a burden 850 times its own weight.

DeCarbo Company New Bonus Plan

Announcement Made At Dinner Of Employees At The Castleton Sunday

Announcement of a new bonus plan for the employees of the DeCarbo Express company was made Sunday, January 26, when a dinner of the employees was held in The Castleton hotel.

The details of the plan are not worked out as yet but the essential elements of the plan are these. Each month a bonus will be paid employees for increases in business brought in by them, for safety and courtesy on the highways and for the appearance of the drivers and equipment.

Fred DeCarbo acted as toastmaster of the dinner meeting and called upon the owner, Charles DeCarbo to speak. He explained the plan as far as it has gone and said that one of the big reasons back of it was to improve safety and courtesy upon the highways. "We want our drivers to remember that the passenger cars in back of them are anxious to get along and we want our men to expedite traffic by giving way when it is necessary," said Mr. DeCarbo. Sales Representative Dominick Cioffi also spoke.

Each of the drivers present was called upon and spoke briefly.

MOTORIST CRASHES INTO ASHING TRUCK

Pennsylvania motor police reported that an automobile driven by Thomas W. Spehlik of 1027 Vinial street, North side, Pittsburgh, crashed into the back of a highway cinder truck, owned by Henry Stoner of R. F. D. No. 2, Portersville. Two men, scattering cinders behind the truck, were able to leap to safety.

Spehlik's machine was reported badly damaged, but the driver escaped injury, also.

Communication To Daughter In West Africa Is Cut Off

New Castle Family Has No
Word From Missionary
Since Last September

Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis, of 916 Marshall avenue, have been unable to communicate with their daughter in French West Africa, since last September. The last letter received by them from their daughter Cecilia, in September, came by air mail.

Letters mailed to their daughter between August and November have been returned to them, with the endorsement, "No service, return to sender." Other persons in this city have also had their mail returned, which was mailed to the same location.

Enquiries at the local post office give the information that air mail service has also been discontinued. Miss Cecilia Lewis and Miss Sallie Botham, both of this city, missionaries on the same field, in French West Africa, are supported by the Christian and Missionary Alliance church, this city. The former has been in French West Africa since 1924, the latter since 1912, both having had several furloughs, spent in this country, in the meantime.

Two Local Bus Operators Honored

R. L. Logan and I. M. Vessella, both of this city, will be among those honored Tuesday evening when safety records established in 1940 by bus drivers of the Penn-Ohio Coach lines will be celebrated with a banquet and entertainment in the Edinburg, O. high school building.

The dinner will be given in honor of the operators who drove their busses throughout either the first half or the second half last year without a chargeable accident. Eighty-three of 91 operators won the distinction. Of the 83 there were 62 who operated their vehicles throughout the entire year without a chargeable accident.

Col. Bell Writes From Camp Shelby

As per order posted at Cunningham Army, from Colonel Wolfe to Unit Commanders of Battery F and 2nd Battalion, Service Battery, quotations are given from a communication from Lieutenant Colonel John T. Bell, Liaison officer, of headquarters of the 190th Field Artillery, at Tyronne, now at Camp Shelby, Mississippi.

"By all means have the men bring heavy underwear. It is very cold here at night, and the rainy season is to come. Rubber boots will be in order here. Any of the officers having kerosene stoves, had better bring them."

"I believe everybody will like Camp Shelby. It is built right in the pine forest, and the soil is entirely sand. At least it will be different."

INCOME TAX IN A NUTSHELL

GROSS INCOME DETERMINES LIABILITY

There are two arresting facts in the 1940 income tax law. First, the basis for determining liability for a return has been changed from net income to gross income. Second, the exemptions have been lowered from $1,000 to $800 for a single person, and from $2,500 to $2,000 for a married person or head of a family.

Every citizen or resident of the United States must file an income tax return, if single, or not living with husband or wife, and his or her gross income is $800; or if married, and his or her gross income is $2,000; or if their aggregate gross income equals or exceeds $2,000. It matters not what the net income of such persons may be, or if the return, by reason of allowable deductions, the personal exemption, or credit for dependents is nontaxable, the gross income of all such persons must be reported to the government.

MARRIAGE DECREASE
California marriages have decreased 36 per cent as a result of the new state law requiring pre-marriage physical examination. Adjoining states provide Gretna Greens for those who object to the examination.

Supervisors and auditors of the county are meeting today in the court house for their annual convention. Dr. Frederick Taylor of Pulaski township is the president of the association. The supervisors and auditors represent the 17 townships of the county.

A verdict for the defendants was returned by the jury hearing the case of William Hoffman and G. A. Mayberry against Vernon Burgoon and Elizabeth Burgoon. The case was one in which the plaintiffs claimed compensation for work done on a house. The testimony showed that the general contractor had been paid and the jury felt that the home owners should not have to pay twice. A mechanics lien has been filed against the contractor.

Three sentences were handed down Saturday by Judge W. Walter Brannan. Howard Ruan, plea to driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, was fined $100 and costs and thirty days in jail, to be released in two days if the fine and costs are paid.

Richard Weeks, plea to larceny was fined $25 and costs and 60 days in the county jail. A petition for parole will be entertained in three weeks if the fine and costs are paid.

Anna Endress was paroled for one year upon a morals charge.

Testimony to determine the degree of guilt of Arthur F. Dean, who has pleaded guilty to the murder of his sister-in-law Helen Nasal, last June will be heard by Judge Walter W. Brannan on Wednesday.

But when anyone feels that a bill is too high, we are glad to break it down in this fashion, because there is no more convincing way of proving that electric service is the greatest bargain that one buys.

Confidential Lists
Of Civil Service
Reported Copied

Two Men In Custody At Washington In Connection With Transaction

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Two men are under custody by the Federal Bureau of Investigation today in connection with the unauthorized removal from the Civil Service Commission of thousands of confidential records of government employees, including many in defense and other key positions.
Those being held by the FBI, with no charges placed against them, were identified as Harlan G. Crandall, 29, C. S. C. employee and Lawrence Haynes, 30, official of a mailing list company.
That more are suspected was disclosed by F. B. I. Chief J. Edgar Hoover who said that "some others will be questioned, their names and identities are known." He refused to comment any further on the case.
Justice Department sources disclosed that Crandall admitted removing the records containing names, addresses, employment, and personal history of the government workers, and giving them to a office where they were copied by two men.
Investigators estimated that 18,000 records, including those for employees for such key defense figures as Sen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and Admiral Harold E. Stark, Navy chief of operations, were involved. They were carried from the commission by the "sack full", according to one investigator.
Crandall is said to have told investigators that he believed the records were wanted for providing mailing lists but became suspicious when he was urged to obtain especially lists of navy yard workers, toolmakers in defense industries, army and navy air service employees and those working in the Panama Canal Zone.

Monoxide Fumes
Fatal To Youth

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 27.—Apparent victims of carbon monoxide fumes, two boys who walked away from the Toner Institute in the Brookline section last Thursday were kept under observation in a hospital today while funeral arrangements were completed for a third companion, James Cordell, 14.
The three boys were overcome while they were washing a car in a closed garage. Police expressed belief they had started the motor and had lighted a small gas stove to keep warm. Cordell and James Molenda, 16, were unconscious when their plight was discovered, and John Bernardo, 13, was in a fainting condition.
Cordell died in a hospital several hours later, while the other two boys responded to treatment.

Most-Favored-Nation
Policy Is Abandoned

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff
Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—In order to help Great Britain win the war, the American government has, in effect, temporarily abandoned the most-favored-nation trade policy, authoritative quarters disclosed today.
This policy, for the promotion of which Hull has striven throughout most of his public life and which represents his most cherished aim in public affairs, has been shelved for the duration of the war.
It was quickly placed on the administration storage shelf when President Roosevelt recently issued an executive order granting to Canada a "general licensing" privilege under the export license system.
This "general licensing" privilege gave Canada, and consequently the British empire, the right to export from this country almost any product it wishes without obtaining a special export license, or in other words, government approval, for each individual shipment. No other foreign country has this right.
The act in itself represents a departure from the most-favored-nation policy. In fact, it actually represents a violation of the reciprocal trade agreements which this government has concluded with nearly 25 nations. These agreements provide that there shall be no discrimination in favor of a third party. The granting of a general license privilege to Canada represents such a discrimination.
It has been regarded as such by a number of the countries with which the United States has trade agreements, including Soviet Russia, which, for one, already has made informal representations against what it considers a flagrant violation of an international obligation.
However, restoration of the most-favored-nation policy depends on defeat of the axis powers by Great Britain. This very fact is considered one of the chief reasons why Secretary Hull is supporting so wholeheartedly the administration's plan for full aid to Britain.

City Ashing Crews Are Kept Busy Over Weekend Due To Heavy Snow
Although a special squad of street workers started before midnight Saturday to blanket snow-covered hills with ashes, their efforts were considerably nullified by a steady downfall of snow in the city.
However, in view of the circumstances there were few accidents over the week-end in the city, only one person having figured in an accident and she claimed she was not injured, according to J. C. McPate of Edinburg. He reported to city police he was driving at 11 a. m. yesterday west in Grant street and Miss Mary Masino, Hillsville, reportedly stepped into the street. His car knocked her down. He took her to friends in the vicinity of Hamilton street and Long avenue. Motor vehicles operated by J. L. Herberg, 403 Neshannock avenue and Richard Gutshall, Armory, city, collided at Croton avenue and East North street at 11 p. m. Sunday. Motor vehicles operated by James E. Samsa, Bessemer and Michael Bender, Detroit, were in a collision at North Liberty street and Mahoning avenue at 1:15 a. m. Sunday. Because a tractor and trailer jackknifed last night on State street, traffic up and down the State street hill was blocked for some time. Traffic was detoured via West Washington street to route 422.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHOOSING A NURSEMAID

How much attention do you pay to the health of any person to whom you entrust care of your children? Do you have a nursemaid examined by a physician before putting your baby in her hands?

I know a family living in fear now because their ex-maid is a victim of tuberculosis. Their children have been thoroughly examined for evidence of the disease, but there is still an incubation period during which they must suffer the agony of doubt because of their failure to heed advice about the maid.

I thought the first time I saw her that she wasn't in good health, and I mentioned this to her employer. "Send her over for a physical examination," I suggested. "Don't take any chances." Very young children haven't much immunity, of course, and can easily contract any disease or infection carried by persons attending them.

"But, Doctor," the mother protested. "If I even mention it to her, she'll probably get mad and quit. She hasn't been sick a day, and she's the best maid I'd ever had. You don't know how hard it is to get one who is dependable!"

Well, you can't dependably diagnose a person just from appearance, and all I could do was exact a promise from the mother that the first time the nurse had a cold or any other complaint, that she'd use it as an excuse to call me to examine the maid.

Alas, by the time the maid became sick enough to want a doctor, it was all too evident that she had tuberculosis. Now she is in a sanatorium and, as I said, her former employer is suffering from fear. I think medical skill, forewarned by the nurse's case, can prevent her children from becoming victims, but she took a terrible chance.

Unfortunately, too few mothers realize how vitally serious, especially to infants in the first year of life, infection from tuberculosis can be. Since infants have no resistance, active and rapid tuberculosis develops in the infected baby. This infection is known as military tuberculosis, which spreads through the whole body, culminating in tubercular meningitis, which is fatal.

No mother hiring a maid for children, particularly very young children, should be satisfied simply with "references" and outward appearance.

ances. She can tactfully arrange for a prospective employee to have a medical examination by the family physician, and pay for it herself. It is often a good idea for a domestic employer to assume the responsibility of paying the ordinary medical expense of the cook or maid, in return for an obligation on the employee's part to have regular check-ups. Trying to save something of the low wages most domestics are paid, causes many of them to neglect proper attention to health.

After all, when you are going to entrust your children's care to a person, no precaution that you take is too much trouble. It's a good idea to know what kind of dwelling from which the maid comes to your home. See it yourself. If it is dirty and slovenly, that should be proper warning. Persons who work as domestics never, of course, come from palaces, but there's no reason why you should employ one who comes from a hovel or a disorderly, dirty house.

American Pilot
Tells Of Service
In Great Britain

Says Flying American-Made
Bombers Across Atlantic Comparatively Safe

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Flying American-built bombers across the Atlantic to England is safer than ferrying planes from English factories to the fighting squadrons, Pilot Paul T. Miller declared today.

Miller, back from a brief vacation at his Chicago home after six months' service in England for the R. A. F., explained that delivery pilots in England are forced to fly low, around 1,500 feet, through lanes of barrage balloons sometimes no more than a mile wide.

British anti-aircraft gunners, unable to see clearly through fog and smoke, often open fire on their own planes, he said.

"I once had to land a 27,500-pound Wellington bomber because the Archie (anti-aircraft guns) opened up on me," he related. "Luckily, I found a big field."

"There are clouds and haze in England all the time. The balloon barrages are terrific. We have to fly down corridors a mile wide, and these are shifted frequently and vary from the maps when the wind blows. Its tough flying with those balloon cables all around."

"I hope to get settled down to a quiet routine flying bombers over the Atlantic pretty soon."

Although he has flown British Spitfire fighters as fast as 400 miles an hour, Miller said the British fighters currently considered the best is a type known as the bull-fighter, powered by two 1,200-horsepower liquid cooled engines.

Miller's wife, Hortense, now stays with her mother in Anderson, Ind.

LASSOED SUN

According to Hawaiian legend, Hina, mother of the god Maui, was hampered making tapa cloth because the sun sped so swiftly across the heavens her mulberry fil r did not have time to dry. ## Weingartner To Present Bills

Bill To Provide Birth Registration And Certification Of Tax Statements

Two pieces of legislation will be put into the legislative hopper tonight in Harrisburg by Assemblyman George T. Weingartner of the second district. One has to do with birth registrations and the other with tax statements made by treasurers and tax collectors.

The first bill provides that birth certificates may be issued by the Bureau of Vital Statistics where the person furnishes the department with accurate information, properly certified, of the time and place of his birth. At the present time no birth certificates are available to any one born before 1905, the year the system started. The new bill would cover the years prior to 1905.

The second bill provides that where a treasurer or tax collector furnishes a statement of back taxes on a property and these taxes are paid, the tax payer shall be relieved of the payment of any taxes which might have been missed in error in making up the statement.

The bill has the endorsement of attorneys who have to do with deeds and titles. In the past years considerable confusion has been caused by tax collecting authorities in giving statements of taxes due, only to supplement the statement later with a new bill, made necessary by the missing of some back taxes.

Smoking is almost universal among Russian women. It is probable that Russia, therefore, has the greatest number of women smokers among the white nations of the world.

Says Leavenworth Is Heaven For Counterfeiters

Bogus Money Makers Teach
Art To Other Convicts Is Claim

(International News Service)
WATERLOO, Ia. — The federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., has become a "counterfeiters' college" where bogus-money makers often teach other convicts how to "make" fake money, according to Russell Daniel, United States secret service agent in charge of the Omaha, Neb., office.

Daniel, speaking before the Waterloo Technical society recently, said that all money counterfeiters eventually reached Leavenworth. There they discuss among themselves methods of photo-engraving and compare notes on imitating the United States currency.

"One counterfeiter goes in, and five come out," Daniel asserted. Passing counterfeit money is becoming increasingly difficult, however, Daniel said, because of education of the public by the treasury department. The amount of bogus bills passed in this country dropped from $3,000,000 in 1926 to $400,000 during the 1939-40 fiscal year.

Railroad Tracks Open To Traffic

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 27.—Both the east and west bound tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad were restored to normal shape and ready for use on Sunday afternoon, two days after an express train pulled by two locomotives had been derailed about a mile east of Ellwood, at Frisco.

News And Views From Pennsylvania Capital

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 27.—Republican organization leaders, meeting at Harrisburg Wednesday for an executive committee conference, are expected to thresh out among themselves what proposed action, if any, should be taken against dissidents within the party.

Other party members are scheduled to gather in Harrisburg again soon for another "house" meeting, the first of which was initiated by Allegheny county Chairman Frank J. Harris anti-organization Republican, with the announced purpose of "reviving the Republican party."

There may be no public statement after the meeting unless the executive committee decides to convoke the state committee in special session, which at present looks unlikely.

Nevertheless, the subject will be thoroughly debated.

Republican State Chairman James F. Torrance recently issued a statement regarded as a reply to Harris and Looming County Treasurer W. Clyde Harer, who also attacked the organization's leadership.

One veteran Republican leader, Paul B. Houck Jr., Schuylkill county chairman, scoffed at reports that any effective opposition to G. O. P. state leadership existed at this time.

The Edmonds home rule bill is evoking considerable interest on Capitol Hill.

Legislative clerks say many requests have been made for copies of the bill.

The measure to permit cities to modernize their municipal governments was introduced in the senate on January 13 and is now in committee.

It is sponsored by Sen. Franklin Spencer Edmonds, Montgomery county Republican.

Commenting on his measure, Edmonds said: "It is basically a test of whether government can be made more efficient and economical."

The Edmonds bill has been named chairman of the special gifts committee of the Orlando Community Chest.

The chest drive starts in a short time but the special gifts committee met on January 26 to get its work under way.

Mrs. Johnson has always been active in the New Castle Community Chest and one year was director of the entire campaign.

According to the Sunday Sentinel-Star of Orlando, Fla., Mrs. Grace Phillips Johnson of New Castle has been named chairman of the special gifts committee of the Orlando Community Chest.

THOMAS WOLFE
(1900-1938)

"How often have we read the paper!

How often have we seen it blocked against our doors!

Little route-boys fold and block it, so to throw it—and so we find it and unfold it, crackling and ink-laden, at our doors.

Sometimes we find it tossed there lightly with flat plop; sometimes we find it thrown with solid, whizzing whack against the clapboards; sometimes servants find just freshly folded sheets laid neatly down in doorways, and take them to the table for their masters. No matter how it got there, we always find it. How we do love the paper! How we do love the paper, all!

Why do we love the paper? Why do we love the paper, all?

Mad masters, I will tell ye why.

Because the paper is 'the news', and we love the smell of news . . ."

From: "You Can't Go Home Again"
by THOMAS WOLFE

IN THIS PASSAGE, which appears in the current best-seller, "You Can't Go Home Again," the late Thomas Wolfe painted a realistic picture of what the news and the newspaper mean to all of us. In the two years since Wolfe's death, world events have made both the news and the newspaper more important than ever in people's lives. And this has made newspaper space, long recognized as the basic advertising medium, more valuable than ever to advertisers.

Ellwood High Here Tuesday In Loop Battle

Lawrence County Teams Will Stage Section Three Battle At Washington

RESERVE TEAMS IN PRELIMINARY

New Castle high school basketball team will be host Tuesday evening to the Ellwood City High team in a Section Three game at the George Washington High gym. The reserves of both teams will play the preliminary at 7 o'clock.

New Castle has won one and lost three, and hopes to get started on the right foot tomorrow night, but they may find the going rough as Coach Jerry Newton will bring a fast team here to oppose the locals. The Ellwood team the other night ran up 36 points on Aliquippa only to lose out. The Ellwood team has yet to win a league game in four starts.

Three In Final Game

The New Castle lineup will remain the same as it was for the start of the Ambridge game, with Lee and Thomas at the forwards, Cooper at center and Christopher and Bucci or Adamo at the guards. Playing their final game for New Castle tomorrow night will be three stars, Ernie Adamo, Al Bucci and Lindale Walls, the latter has been used mostly in relief roles. As in the case of other years it will be a typical New Castle-Ellwood battle all the way, with both teams anxious to register. Coach Phil Bridenbaugh will give his boys a final workout today at the Washington High court. Coach Newton will give the blue and white clad passers a polishing up this afternoon also.

Lack Of Snow Is No Barrier To This Farmer

PETERBORO, N. H.—Recently a farmer added a new chore to his list. Because lack of snow threatened to mar a winter week-end sports trade, carded for Howard Whitcomb's ski tow, the farmer's ingenuity solved the problem. Whitcomb rigged a plow on his tractor and scraped the snow off his fields. Then he loaded the flakes on a spreader and created a home made blizzard on the ski slope. Three inches of well-sifted snow made great skiing—not to mention great business for the town. Simple, wasn't it?

In one of those hair raising battles, the classy Polish Falcon cage edition snared its 11th consecutive victory, a 35-33 decision over the Akron Turners, yesterday on the Falcon floor.

After taking an 11-7 first quarter edge, the Falcons managed to romp off the court at halftime with a 17-15 advantage. The locals, however, spurred in the third stanza and widened the gap, 28-23.

Kozela and Adams shared honors for the Falcons. Simpson and Plack starred for the losers.

East Brook High Is Surprise Team

Section 20 Rivals Continue Scramble For Honors Tuesday Night

As the Section 20 race nears the February start, East Brook High is setting an unexpected pace.

Pre-season dopesters labeled the Brookers as a so so club. After winning two loop triumphs, the Brook brigade suffered two setbacks. Regaining its stride, East Brook followed with two more victories to snare second place, not too far away from the league leadership New Wilmington combination.

Win Four Games
As of today, East Brook boasts of four wins against a pair of defeats. East Brook hopes to continue its march against Union township Tuesday night on the Union hardwood, and the game will be replete with action.

After a shaky start, Bessemer High fooled the wetsheimers by garnering three league wins against three setbacks. Now that the Capezutti five has found its bearings, league foes are not counting the Cement City quintet out of the race. Even if the Bessemerites fail to bag the toga, they'll toss a monkey wrench or two into the works.

Bessemer High meets up with another surprise team, Mt. Jackson, Tuesday night on Mt. Jackson floor. The Mounties, after losing to East Brook, engineered one of the early upsets by spilling Bessemer Bessemer aims to avenge the early defeat.

Wampum-N. Wilmington
Back on its feet again after being stricken by the flu, Wampum High's quintet is slated to do battle with New Wilmington High, on Shelby floor, Ellwood City. Wampum's chances of breaking the eight game winning streak amassed by the "Greyhounds" are excellent, taking into consideration the fact that Paul Minner won't be around his post as center for the league leaders.

Minner was injured recently and will have to view proceedings from the sidelines for next three or four weeks. This tough break may prove detrimental to the college towners who are still a few lengths from capturing the sectional bauble.

Titans Have Developed Baffling Floor Gibberist

(Special To The News) NEW WILMINGTON, Jan. 27.—When Westminster College cagers need to pass a bit of information on the playing floor to a teammate, they don't take chance on saying it in English.

They don't shout "Shoot a shot-pass to the left corner," or "Take a shot from where you are; there's only seconds to go." The Westminster cagers have invented a gibberish all of their own, a combination of phrases made up from Russian, Polish and Hungarian. By using a combination of these languages, the Blue and White floormen never take a chance on the opposition tuning in on their verbal warnings.

Sports trail melody: Paul Minner's left wrist injury interested the Pittsburgh Pirates to such an extent that they rushed a representative to the college town to double check the situation. As most Lawrence couthians know, Minner has been branded as one of the brightest southpaw pitching prospects in the district. The Pirates reportedly have the inside rail on the towering schoolboy.

If the broken bone doesn't mend well enough within two weeks, Minner has been told to inform the National league club. The Pirates will handle the situation from there in, our informant said. The Bucs aren't the only ones seriously concerned. New Wilmington High's five is making eyes at a third Section 20 banner and a possible class B WPIAL title. Without the versatile Paul, the "Greyhounds" are so so and no better.

Temple University's basketball team has played but two overtime games in the past five years and on both occasions Michigan State was the rival team. And the Owls finished on the short end of the count each time. Last week the Spartans scored a two-point victory in the extra period.

According to reports in Cleveland, the Indians offered the St. Louis Browns $75,000 for Outfielder Walter Judnick, but were turned down. At least one leading Cleveland pitcher was understood to be the price asked by St. Louis.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Pastor Resigns, Charge Sunday

Rev. Milton E. Shearer To Go To Church In Philadelphia In April

SEVENTH WARD
PASTOR 5 YEARS

REV. M. E. SHEARER

Rev. Milton E. Shearer presented his resignation to the congregation of the Madison Avenue Christian church, at the morning service Sunday, to be effective Sunday, April 13.

Mr. Shearer has been offered the pulpit of the Kensington Christian church, Philadelphia. This new position will provide a larger field and an increased opportunity for the youthful minister, who just recently attained his 25th birthday.

He will leave Mahoningtown after five years of faithful service to the local church. During his pastorate here, many new organizations have been formed, young peoples activities have taken a spurt and at the present time the congregation is about ready to embark upon the construction of a $10,000 addition to the building.

While serving here, Mr. Shearer attained his Bachelor of Arts degree at Westminster college in June, 1938. In addition he has had three years of previous work at Johnson Bible college.

Mr. Shearer is looking forward to his new position affording him an opportunity of attending one of Philadelphia's fine universities next year. He states that he will probably enter Temple university, where he will become a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology.

While Mr. Shearer was not looking for another church, the Philadelphia congregation heard of his work here and sent for him. He delivered a sermon at that church on January 12, after which he was given a unanimous call.

Rev. Thomas B. Shearer, who is pastor of the Central Christian church, this city, is the father of Rev. Milton Shearer.

While holding the pastorate at the Mahoningtown church, Mr. Shearer has always been ready and willing to cooperate in civic undertakings. For two years he held the post of pastoral counselor for the Lawrence County Christian Endeavor Union. He is at present a member of the New Castle Ministerial association, and president of District Two, of the Deciples of Christ.

Mr. and Mrs. Shearer will move from their North Liberty street home, during the week following Easter Sunday, and he will deliver his first sermon in the new church on April 20. The church is located in North Philadelphia, and is a fine modern structure, built in 1929.

The resignation came as a complete shock to the congregation and the community.
